OFFICE OF LOGISTICS
ANNUAL REPORT OF WARTIME PREPARATION

1 July 1957 - 30 June 1958

A. SUMMARY OF ACCOMPLISHMENTS

1. CIA Global War Plan for Clandestine Operations

a. Annex "E", Administrative and Support, was reviewed. The general concepts and provisions governing CIA support planning and operations for wartime were found to be logistically adequate.

b. Annex "H", War Planning Areas, was reviewed. The Office of Logistics concurred in the war planning areas designated.

c. Annex "F", Evacuation, was reviewed and the changes previously recommended were incorporated in paragraph 4, entitled "Execution." No additional recommendations or comments were deemed necessary. The services required are the responsibility of the Departments of State and Defense and are provided for in the Evacuation Plans of these departments.

d. The draft of Annex "I", Technical Aids to Operations, has been reviewed. The support procedures outlined appear to be adequate in support of TSS units. It was recommended, however, for purposes of continuity and clarity, that this Annex be cross-referenced to the logistic procedures outlined in Annex "E".

e. Appendix 2 to Annex "E", Agency Global War Plan of the Clandestine Services. The previous report indicated that a problem existed in "lack of agreement of responsibility for determining materiel requirements in support of operational requirements levied by the Military and accepted as valid and feasible by the Agency." This deficiency was eliminated with publication of Appendix 2 (Logistics) to Annex "E", Global War Plan, on 11 February 1958. Responsibility for the action indicated has been placed with the Senior War Planners who will determine the wartime requirements for standard military items as well as Agency peculiar items.

2. CIA/PAC Operations Plan No. 27-58

This Plan has been reviewed with especial emphasis devoted to Annex "C", Concept of Operations, and Annex "H", Logistics and Administration (Support), with the conclusion that there is sufficient guidance to implement the logistical phases of the Plan.

3. CIA/Europe Theatre (Area) War Plan 1-57

a. Draft of Annex "R", "Implementing Orders and Instructions", was reviewed. No logistical implications became apparent.

b. The re-draft of Annex "I", "Communications", was reviewed. There were no substantial changes and those made were only minor improvements in terminology.

4. Annex "D", Administration and Support to KUBARK/Europe/North War Plan

Annex "D" was reviewed for logistical implications. The major implication has been clarified and the policy published in Appendix 2, Logistics, to the CIA Global War Plan. This policy states "that the Senior War Planner, pre-D-Day, will determine CIA wartime operational and administrative materiel requirements in coordination with Agency Headquarters and field station."

5. Annex "F", Psychological Warfare to KUBARK/Europe Theatre (Area) War Plan 1-57

There were no logistical implications apparent in this Annex.

8. Emergency Relocation Planning

The following conclusions resulting from Office of Logistics participation in Operation Alert 1957 and subsequent actions are noteworthy:

a. The Office of Logistics is generally able to logistically support an initial relocation cadre [] under emergency relocation conditions. Stocks of administrative and housekeeping supplies

25X9A2 and equipment, including emergency rations to cover a 90-day emergency supply in support of [] persons, are being positioned at the relocation site. Sufficient warehouse space has also been made available.

b. The Office of Logistics is generally able to complement and support the DD/P, DD/I and DD/S operational activities.

c. The Office of Logistics contributed substantial commentary to the proposed Agency Master Plan to cope with emergency conditions and especially those which adversely affect continuity of Agency affairs.

9. Other Accomplishments

25X1A6A

Reviewed the Emergency and Noncombatant Evacuation Plans for []

25X1A6A

and Evacuation/Operations Plan No. 60-57. The guidance furnished appears to be sound and no logistical implications became discernible which would require CIA Headquarters action.

B. STATUS OF PENDING ACTIONS

1. CIA Support of Military with Regard to Peculiar Items

Progress has been made towards the establishment of a Strategic Reserve of Agency peculiar items for use by the Military during hot war. The following accomplishments are noteworthy:

a. Lists of Agency peculiar items have been distributed to the Senior War Planners. Sterilized lists were also distributed to the specialized military components in the European and Pacific areas.

b. Lectures on and demonstrations of the Agency peculiar items have been made to representatives of the specialized military units in the European and Pacific areas.

c. Firm requirements of Agency peculiar items have been received from the Department of Defense for use by the Support Operations Task Force, Europe. Preparatory arrangements are under way for storing the first 60 days requirement in custody of SOTFE, Europe.

d. Storage data in the form of weight and cube information for all Agency peculiar items has been furnished to the Senior War Planners for dissemination to the specialized military units.

e. Based on accepted requirements for Agency peculiar items submitted by the Military, a project was presented to the Project Review Committee requesting funds and approval to establish a Strategic Reserve over the next five-year period. The Project Review Committee has indicated its willingness to recommend that the DCI give his approval.

This recommendation is held in abeyance pending decision of the Bureau of the Budget regarding the funding mechanism to be employed. The stockpiling program envisions the expenditure of $1,281,000 during the Fiscal Years 1959 through 1963. It further provides for the Military's first 60-day hot war requirement to be prepositioned in overseas depots by end of Fiscal Year 1959.

2. Emergency Relocation Planning

a. ☐ Anticipated Requirement

25X9A2

A survey is being conducted to determine deficiencies in support of an initial relocation cadre ☐ This represents an increase of ☐ over the previously approved total ☐

25X9A2

25X9A2

b. Augmentation Site

Plans and studies are under way to develop augmentation relocation site(s) for the remainder of the Agency personnel.

c. Post-Emergency Printing Capability

Arrangements are being finalized with the Department of Defense (as claimant Agency for CIA under ODM Order VII-5) to earmark for CIA on a stand-by basis, certain commercial printing facilities for post-emergency use. These facilities will meet the Agency printing requirements in most instances.

C. MAJOR PROBLEMS OR DEFICIENCIES

There are two deficiencies that would limit our capability to perform in time of war if D-Day were imminent. These deficiencies will be corrected in the near future. They are as follows:

a. "The Senior War Planner, pre-D-Day, will determine CIA Wartime Operational and Administrative requirements in coordination with CIA Headquarters and field stations." Specific theatre requirements COMCINCPAC have been determined and are contained in Annex "I" to the General Emergency Operation Plan 1-58, now being staffed and evaluated for comment at Headquarters. Upon receipt ☐ of Headquarters comments, copies of the Plan prepared for CINCPAC will be tendered as a formal levy on the Military for placement of these items into Military Unconventional Warfare reserves. No report has been received from Senior War Planner, Europe, that the European requirements have been developed for levy on CINCEUR.

b. "The Senior War Planner will levy requirements for Agency type items on CIA Headquarters for placement in Agency Strategic Reserve." These requirements have not been received by this Headquarters in support of CIA on D-Day.
